

Mary Glock
Winner of 2008 The New York Times/NACCE Student Essay Contest

Mary Glock is the owner of Detailed Promotions, a graphic resource company and Travelling Footprints, a leisure travel business. Prior to starting her businesses in 2007, Mary was an independent contractor for a variety of marketing and printing companies. Mary began her career with a Bachelors degree in Marketing from Minnesota State University at Mankato and quickly progressed from a customer service manager to territory manager. In 2005, unsure of her career direction she returned to school at Dakota County Technical College in Apple Valley, Minnesota to pursue additional education in management. Exposure to the college's entrepreneurship program lit a fire in her to become a business owner and she is currently completing a certificate in Entrepreneurship. Mary is a single mother with a grown son and is embarking on the next evolution of her career life. Fueled by support from her church and her college she hopes to not only become a successful business owner but start her own non-profit organization to help others in her community find purpose and success in their own lives.

Bob Voss
Winner of 2008 NACCE Entrepreneurship Faculty of the Year Award

Bob Voss, the head of the Business Entrepreneur program at Dakota County Technical College, worked as a full-time entrepreneur up until age 51. During that time, he started three businesses, including his current endeavor, which uses video technology he created to teach English to Latin fast/casual dining industry workers. While he loved taking on entrepreneurial endeavors, Bob knew he wanted more. In March 2002, Bob made a decision for himself that would change his entire path in life. He realized that he had a deep passion for education, and though he had never taught before, he decided to commit to becoming a teacher.

Janie Martínez González
Winner of 2008 E-Myth Entrepreneur of the Year Award

Ms. Janie Gonzalez is a shining star of the Alamo Community Colleges. Her success, dedication and perseverance to entrepreneurship education and leadership, exemplifies the impact the community college ignites in future entrepreneurs and leaders. Through Ms. Gonzalez' entrepreneurial training at Palo Alto College, she was able to form "Web Head Group Inc", one of the fastest growing, minority owned IT, Web Host, E Commerce companies in the country. Web Head Group's client roster includes City of San Antonio-Public Works Department, United States Air Force, Houston Area Library Systems, Holt Caterpillar, Zachry Corporation, Alamo WorkSource, Gonzaba Medical Group, Alamo Federal Credit Union, Texas Border Coalition, Health Check USA, Finck Cigar Company, many others. Janie takes great pride in having grown Web Head Group from 2 employees to over 25 full- and part-time employees and partners to 1.5 million dollars in annual sales. She says Web Head Group's success is due to embracing change and always being one step ahead of evolving technology that cuts costs and increases profits for Clients.